Handling of Classes in Emergencies

In cases where classes must be cancelled in the event of an emergency situation such as the suspension of public transportation due to a large-scale accident or because of natural disasters including typhoons, torrential rain, snow, and earthquakes, announcements will be posted on the university website, etc.

Student Website → Selecting the Faculty /
Graduate School → Classes → Schedules
<https://www.students.keio.ac.jp/en/com/class/schedule/emergency.html>

If an emergency event occurs after the start of classes, separate measures such as sending students home early or shortening the duration of lectures will be taken as circumstances dictate. Follow the instructions that are given via the campus broadcasts and put up on the bulletin boards and university website.

In Case of a Major Earthquake

- In principle, you must remain at the university without attempting to return home if you are on university grounds following a large earthquake registering a seismic intensity of lower 5 on the Japanese seismic scale.
- If you are inside a building, you must not blindly go outside (the school buildings are quakeproofed).
- You must obey university instructions as to whether or not you should return home, waiting areas, picking up any emergency stockpiles, or any other precautions or announcements.

If You Spot a Fire

- Shout "Fire!" to let those around you know.
- Press the nearest fire alarm.
- Distance yourself from the source of the fire and evacuate outside. Never use elevators.

Contact Keio [Important!]

When a large earthquake occurs, Keio will try to confirm the safety of all students, faculty and staff members.

Please contact the university from the link below as soon as possible.
