SFC, where students create the future

When the Faculty of Policy Management and the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies at Keio University Shonan Fujisawa Campus (SFC) were established in April 1990, they were ahead of their time in academics for the twenty-first century and in defining what a university should be. The two faculties were born out of an innovative concept yet to be seen throughout the world—creating and reorganizing knowledge to meet the needs of the times.

The diverse issues that modern society faces today involve a multitude of intertwined complex factors. Going far beyond the boundaries of a single discipline, each issue needs to be addressed with an interdisciplinary and integrated approach. With this in mind, the two faculties at SFC offer education that emphasizes “identifying and solving problems” and “creativity in development.” Real-life issues are not dissected to fit within the framework of individual disciplines, but rather are approached using results of existing related academic disciplines newly reorganized into a system of knowledge and technology. As a result, a wide range of ideas and broad perspectives can be used to find solutions.

In the Faculty of Policy Management, problem-solving is approached from the perspectives of policy, law, strategy, management, and governance. The Faculty of Environment and Information Studies emphasizes approaches such as technology, design, tools, ingenuity, and art. Although the approaches taken by the two faculties are not entirely separate, they are based on different ideas. While collaboration between the two faculties is always available, each faculty aims to be distinct in its approach to problem solving.

“What do you want to learn at SFC?” is the starting point

SFC is looking for individuals who have their own themes or issues they want to find solutions to, and after gaining a thorough understanding of the policies and contents of each of the faculties, will come to SFC and say, “This is what I want to learn at SFC.” We hope these individuals will fully utilize the learning environment and systems available at SFC and foster their ability to open up doors to the future with their own hands. For AO Admissions in particular, we hope to see applicants who are highly motivated to enter SFC to pursue their goals and vision at a higher level.

AO Admissions at SFC is a screening process based on a comprehensive evaluation of an applicant’s multifaceted abilities and strengths

The AO Admissions is an open entrance examination that allows you to apply freely at your own will as long as certain criteria are met. A feature of AO Admissions is that it does not involve a one-sided, uniform assessment based on the results of examinations such as a written examination or a skills test. Rather, it is a multifaceted and comprehensive evaluation, based on document screening and interviews covering the time applicants graduate from junior high school until the time of application.

Although the admissions quota makes it necessary to conduct screenings, we view the screening process as an opportunity for Keio University and applicants to meet and communicate with each other so that an ideal match can be found on both sides.

The students sought by the Faculty of Policy Management

Thinking about the policy to pave the way for a better future

The Faculty of Policy Management at Keio University Shonan Fujisawa Campus (SFC) has been pursuing scholarship aimed at “thinking about policy to pave the way for a better future.”

The discipline of policy management studies exists based on the recognition that policy is “to determine a course of action,” and that “human behavior creates society, and the science which analyzes society can only be based on comprehensive judgment.”

The Faculty of Policy Management was established about thirty years ago in 1990. With the fall of the Berlin Wall in the previous year, and the end of the Cold War, it was a period of time that imparted a real sense of momentous changes in the world. A time of hope for the future, but also a time of great uncertainty. With less chance of predicting what would change and what would remain the same, the younger generation could not have imagined what the future could hold.

Now, once again, the world is becoming more unstable. Values that society has shared are changing, and the norms and systems that have constituted the “rules of the game” are shifting. Many of the assumptions that have been taken for granted have changed. For example, while we hoped that developments in communication technology would contribute to advancing liberal democracy, we have found that they have also served to prop up authoritarianism. We once believed that globalization and strengthening economic interdependence would guarantee peace and prosperity in the international community. However, the current state of our world tells a different story.

The order of society itself by nature is in constant flux. That is why many of the real-world issues require new ideas for solutions, as existing solutions are not compatible with these issues. In addition, issues in the real world do not necessarily appear in a specific academic discipline. To derive valid solutions to solve issues, perspectives from multiple academic disciplines are essential.

While being conversant with each advanced academic field, policy management studies seek to synthesize and make headway into interdisciplinary fields, with one of the appeals of our scholarship being that it equips us with modes of thinking that lead the way far ahead of society in continuous change. Our discipline of “thinking about policy” always looks into the future to come and beyond the changes.

If conventional studies focus on how to understand matters accurately within a limited scope, policy management studies are the antithesis of these studies. We try to look ahead to changes in society and commit ourselves to solving issues as though they were our own. This is the starting point for the Faculty of Policy Management.

Our mission is to pursue the truth and to conceive of new ideas to make Japan and the world a better place. More than 10,000 students have graduated from the Faculty of Policy Management. This may be only a drop in the bucket in the context of the whole world. However, many of our graduates are working hard to make Japan and the world a better place. The Faculty of Policy Management is looking for students who can join these efforts.

Professor Tomoki Kamo
Dean of the Faculty of Policy Management

Opening the door to a new era

I strongly suspect that many of you reading this message were born in the 21st century. The 20th century was a century of remarkable development in the field of science and technology; yet it was also a century of global wars and environmental problems. While the 21st century was supposedly set to become the century of environmental consciousness, more than 20 years of that century have already passed. I wonder if we are actually on the path to overcoming our environmental problems. The situation around neither of the global environmental problems of climate change or biodiversity has improved. While the world has been severely affected by the emergence and spread of COVID-19 commencing from the end of 2019, new infections and pandemics of this ilk are a symptom of the expansion of human activities.

As we all know, climate change poses a variety of risks, including a high incidence of natural disasters. Many countries around the world are rapidly moving toward carbon neutrality, which would effectively reduce carbon dioxide emissions to zero by 2050. And across the globe, a new goal for biodiversity conservation was adopted in December 2022, with the mission of taking urgent action to halt and reverse the loss of biodiversity, and put us on a track toward restoring what was lost. It has been indicated that fundamental social changes are needed to stop global warming and the loss of biodiversity on a global scale. Furthermore, if we look at Japan, we can see that the population is rapidly declining and is steadily aging, and there is also the risk of large-scale natural disasters such as a Nankai Megathrust Earthquake. Is there anything in store for us other than a dark future?

It was once believed that developments in science and technology held the promise of a bright future for us all. Although true adherents to this belief are now few, science and technology still offer us new possibilities. Advanced technologies envisioned in science fiction such as dokodemo door (portals) allowing us to traverse space have yet to be invented. However, due to COVID-19, it became the “new normal” to perform activities such as classes and work through our computer screens. The technologies humanity dreams up, such as dokodemo door (portals), sometimes materialize in unexpected ways. In Japan, the population of people over the age of 100 has reached an all-time high. Some say that developments in medicine are on course to make a reality of an era in which we will all live for 120 years.

Your era will be completely at odds with that which your parents lived through. Such changes may gather pace with increasing speed. The Faculty of Environment and Information Studies envisages and seeks students who will initiate such changes to create a new era. The future remains full of uncertainties, and it is not enough to think about the future as an extension of the past. We need to challenge ourselves based on our vision and ideas. The Faculty of Environment and Information Studies hopes that those with the courage to take on the mantle of creating a bright future by taking advantage of all the resources available here, including faculty members, peers, and the research and education environment, will become our companions on that journey. Now, let us open the door to a new era together.

Professor Tomohiro Ichinose
Dean of the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies

Online materials must be uploaded as JPEG, PDF, or video files.

XI. Frequently Asked Questions, Commonly Made Errors

A. Frequently Asked Questions

1. General Questions

- Q1-1. Can I apply to both the Faculty of Policy Management and the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies at the same time?
A1-1. You may not apply to both faculties during the same application period.
- Q1-2. Can I apply to other faculties at Keio University, or other universities, at the same time?
A1-2. Although it does not prohibit you from applying to other faculties at Keio University, or other universities, one of the conditions for submitting an AO application to the Faculty of Policy Management or the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies, is that either of those faculties at Keio University is your first choice.
- Q1-3. Can I reapply?
A1-3. Yes, it is possible to reapply. You will need to prepare the items necessary for application each time you apply. In addition, you will need to provide an explanation of the changes and differences between the new application and the previous one. Please note that each time you apply, screening will begin with the first-round (evaluation of documents and materials) screening. Also, application is not limited to the AO type of application.
- Q1-4. How do the various application periods (Summer/Fall AO, Spring AO) differ?
A1-4. There are no differences in the screening method. Submit an application in the period when you are able to prepare all the items necessary for making the application. Please note that options for enrollment period differ according to the application period.
- Q1-5. How does Winter AO (Global) differ from Summer/Fall AO, Spring AO?
A1-5. Eligibility requirements and screening methods differ. Since no interview is required, it is possible to undergo Winter AO (Global) screening without making a trip to Japan. For Summer/Fall AO, Spring AO, you can select either Japanese or English for the language used in application documents. For Winter AO (Global), only English is to be used in application documents. Please confirm details of eligibility requirements for applying through Winter AO (Global) in the Application Guidebook (will become available around late September 2024).
- Q1-6. Are there any differences depending on the enrollment period or language used in application documents I choose?
A1-6. Your choice of enrollment period and language used in application documents does not affect the screening in any way. Make selections based on your preferences. Your selections cannot be altered after you have submitted the application. Please note that for those who do not have enough Japanese language proficiency to take classes conducted in Japanese, September (Fall Semester) enrollment is strongly recommended.
- Q1-7. Can I change my enrollment period after submitting my application?
A1-7. After submitting your application, you may not change the enrollment period you selected. Make sure you carefully consider which enrollment period is the best for you before submitting your application.
- Q1-8. Are there hotels and such near the Shonan Fujisawa Campus?
A1-8. There are hotels at the nearest stations, Shonandai Station and Tsujido Station. Please make your own arrangements if you need accommodations for the second-round screening interview.

2. Questions Pertaining to Application Eligibility

- Q2-1. Do I need to have any particular achievements in extracurricular activities (winning awards, overseas activities, etc.) in order to apply?
- A2-1. Even without any particular achievements in extracurricular activities, students who have excellent academic records and show strong motivation to study at SFC are welcome to apply.
- Q2-2. What are some examples of academic and extracurricular achievements that I should highlight in my application?
- A2-2. You should make a self-assessment and tell us your strengths and accomplishments. The following are some examples of achievements that can be highlighted:
- a. Recognized in activities such as research, creative presentations, contests, or competitions, in fields such as academics, culture, arts, or sports.
  - b. Possesses excellent skills in disciplines such as foreign languages or computer technology, and has achieved high scores in related tests and/or obtained high-level qualifications.
  - c. Recognized for accomplishments in community volunteer work or other social work.
  - d. Possesses both superior academic abilities and a creative, enthusiastic attitude toward learning.
  - e. Has an excellent character, outstanding academic grades, and is recognized for showing exemplary leadership traits in the local community or high school and the like.
  - f. Has initiated independent research or study on a theme based on a personal interest, and has produced results.
- Q2-3. Are there any criteria or standards for evaluation values (academic grades or examination scores) for applying?
- A2-3. There are no criteria for evaluation values (academic grades or examination scores) for applying.
- Q2-4. Can I apply if I enrolled in a different university after graduating from high school, or if a significant amount of time has passed since graduating from high school? Is there an upper age limit for applying?
- A2-4. There is no upper age limit for applying. If eligibility requirements are met, one can apply. For those who are, or were, enrolled at a different university, submission of an official academic transcript from that university is required.

3. Questions about the online application and the documents required for application

- Q3-1. What is the difference between the "Language Used in Application Documents" and the "Language Used for Enrollment"?
- A3-1. The "Language Used in Application Documents" is selected in advance in order to ensure that the applicant has the correct language for the online application and Personal Statement. Please use the selected language as much as possible when you input your information and prepare your documents. Once you have selected, you cannot change it, so please make your selection carefully.
In the "Language Used for Enrollment Registration", applicants are asked to select the language to be used for admission procedures after passing the entrance examination. All procedures, information, and input language will be done in this language. The information is not written in both Japanese and English. The procedure differs depending on the admission procedure. In addition, the medium of instruction for class designated courses will be determined according to the "Language Used for Enrollment Registration". If you choose Japanese as your language to be used for enrollment registration, you will be assigned to the Japanese classes, and if you choose English, you will be assigned to the English classes. Compulsory classes will be held in the language you have chosen for the admission procedure. Please take this into consideration when making your selection. Please note that applicants who wish to enter in April cannot select English as the "Language Used for Enrollment Registration".
- Q3-2. I have selected Japanese (English) as the Language Used in Application Documents. Do I need to prepare the evaluation of applicants in the Japanese (or English) language that I selected? Also, do I need to prepare certificates related to grades and graduation such as an Official School Report (調査書) in Japanese (English)?
- A3-2. No.
Both Japanese and English are acceptable for the evaluation of applicants. In addition, we accept both Japanese and English versions of the certificates related to grades and graduation such as an Official School Report (調査書).
- Q3-3. I have materials that highlight the results of my activities. Can I send them by post?
- A3-3. Anything not listed in the Application Guidebook as items to be submitted by post will not be accepted. All materials should be submitted through the Online Application System.
- Examples If the following documents are sent by post, they will not be considered as application documents:
- recommendations
  - awards and qualification certificates for competitions other than those on the approved list for first-round screening exemption
  - all types of scores and the like from applicants other than those who studied under an educational system in countries other than Japan
  - all types of scores not submitted according to instructions by applicants who studied under an educational system in countries other than Japan
- Q3-4. I have more than ten optional materials that I want to submit.
- A3-4. Devise a way to keep the number to ten or less when creating your materials.
- Q3-5. I created two presentation slides, but only one is indicated as uploaded.
- A3-5. Only one PDF file can be submitted. If you have created two presentation slides, combine them into a single PDF file and upload it.
- Q3-6. My evaluator has not finished the evaluation. What should I do?
- A3-6. Contact the evaluator directly and confirm the circumstances.
Check to see if the evaluator's email address was entered correctly.
After registering the evaluator's email address, an email requesting an evaluation is immediately sent to the evaluator and appears as:

件名 (Subject) : 【オンライン出願システム】 評価者依頼のご連絡 – [Online Application] Request for evaluation from applicant

If the email cannot be received, confirm the evaluator's email settings (check possibilities that the email went to the junk mailbox or trash folder).

Until the two applicant evaluations are completed (Confirmed), application documents cannot be submitted. If documents are not submitted due to applicant evaluations not being completed by the application deadline, the application will not be accepted under any circumstances. It is the responsibility of the applicant to allow plenty of time before the deadline when making requests to evaluators.

Status of Evaluation

Unconfirmed	Writing of the evaluation has not yet begun.
In Progress	The evaluation is being written and has not been submitted yet.
Confirmed	The evaluation has been completed and submitted.

Q3-7. Should I drop the documents to be submitted by post into a mailbox? How will I know if my documents were delivered properly?

A3-7. If sending from within Japan, be sure to go to the post office counter and arrange to have it sent by "simple registered express mail" (簡易書留速達) in order to be able to track your envelope. If you simply drop your envelope into a mailbox around town, there is the possibility that it will not be handled as "simple registered express mail" and it may not be delivered by the deadline.

By using the inquiry number on the simple registered mail receipt, you will be able to confirm delivery status on the Japan Post website. The Admissions Office will not be able to respond to individual inquiries requiring arrival of documents. Applicants should track their envelopes using the inquiry number as well as check application status during the designated period by logging in to the Online Application System.

If application documents are sent from outside of Japan, they should also be sent by a method that allows tracking, such as EMS.

4. Questions related to the Online Application System

Q4-1. The Online Application System is not operating properly.

A4-1. Confirm system requirements. Please note that it may not operate smoothly when using OS environments, web browser software, and versions other than those recommended.

Q4-2. When I click on the Confirmed, Submit, or similar buttons, the screen does not change even after waiting a long time.

A4-2. When uploading large files, submitting all your documents, etc., it may take time. However, if, after 15 minutes, documents are still not uploaded, close the browser and try logging in again. If this does not resolve the issue, try uploading and submitting documents in an environment that has a higher Internet speed connection. If you are still having problems, contact the Admissions Office.

B. Commonly Made Errors

Any of the errors below will invalidate your entire application. Be sure to check your documents while preparing them, and check them once again before sending your documents by post.

- ☒ Certificates are not officially sealed/Date of issuance is old
→In principle, documents submitted by post, such as an Official School Report (調査書), must be officially sealed. Be sure to confirm validity of dates of issuance on certificates.
- ☒ Only one page of the Handwritten Application Form is among the documents submitted by post
→There are 2 pages to the Handwritten Application Form that need to be printed out after completing the online application process. Be sure to send both by post.
- ☒ In the Handwritten Application Form, the section that needs to be filled out by hand is incomplete
→In the Handwritten Application Form that applicants print out, there is a section (copying down a sentence, date of filling out the form, name) that must be filled out by hand. Be sure to fill it out by following the instructions before submitting it by post.
- ☒ (For applicants from high schools in Japan) Not all items required on the Official School Report (調査書) are filled out
