Using Generative Artificial Intelligence (AI)

Generative AI can accelerate the process of identifying and solving problems. By integrating AI tools with your personal background and experience, you can better formulate and refine your ideas. However, relying too heavily on generative AI is inappropriate because it may become a crutch.

As such, students are permitted to use generative AI as an auxiliary study tool when preparing for the AO (Self-Recommended Admissions) screening. However, we will not consider AI-generated application materials (i.e., your statement of purpose, study plan, ways you hope to contribute to SFC, and optional materials) as evidence of a student's original work.

Please refer to the Admissions Policy for the Faculty of Policy Management and the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies to make a fully informed decision about using AI-generated content.

I . To All Applying to Our AO Screenings

Admissions Office

SFC, a campus for forward-minded students

The Faculty of Policy Management and the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies at Keio University Shonan Fujisawa Campus (SFC) were established in April 1990, born out of an innovative concept not yet seen anywhere in the world—creating and reorganizing knowledge to meet the needs of the times. The faculties were ahead of their time in academics for the twenty-first century and in defining what a university should be.

The range of issues facing our society involve a multitude of complex, intertwined factors. These challenges extend far beyond the scope of any single discipline and require an interdisciplinary, integrated approach. At SFC, we prepare graduates to tackle real-world problems by understanding, reconfiguring, and applying existing knowledge and technologies across relevant fields—rather than confining them within established academic disciplines. To this end, education at the two faculties focuses on identifying and solving problems while fostering creativity.

In the Faculty of Policy Management, problem-solving is approached from the perspectives of policy, law, strategy, management, and governance. The Faculty of Environment and Information Studies emphasizes approaches that leverage technology, design, tools, ingenuity, and art. Although there is overlap between the approaches taken by the two faculties, they are based on different ideas. While collaboration between the two faculties is always available, each faculty aims to be distinct in its approach to problem solving.

Starting by asking students what they want to learn at SFC

SFC encourages applicants to bring a clear sense of purpose and explore their own questions, themes, or issues, grounded in a solid understanding of the philosophy and curriculum of each faculty. We look for students who aspire to hone their ability to blaze a trail to the future by utilizing all resources at SFC, including its educational environment and systems. For our AO Screenings in particular, we seek applicants who possess a strong vision and passion for learning at SFC, with the goal of achieving higher levels of self-realization.

Our AO Screenings takes a holistic approach, evaluating the unique abilities and strengths of each applicant

Our admission process is open to all applicants who meet the specified eligibility requirements. It does not rely on a one-dimensional, uniform assessment based solely on written exam scores or skills tests. Instead, we review each application holistically, considering multiple perspectives. We ask that you share the activities and achievements—academic and beyond—that you’ve been involved in since graduating from junior high school, both through your application documents and during the interview. Although the admissions quota requires us to “screen” and “select” applicants, we view the process as an opportunity for both applicants and the university to engage in a dialogue, fostering a mutually beneficial fit.

Envisioning policies for a better future

The Faculty of Policy Management at Keio University Shonan Fujisawa Campus (SFC) has been engaging in academic pursuits focused on policies to pave the way for a better future. Policy management studies understand policy as the act of choosing and deciding for people to take actions, and exist with the recognition that human behavior creates society, and the science that analyzes society must be based on comprehensive judgment.

Our faculty was established in 1990, a time that conveyed a real sense of momentous change in the world, with the fall of the Berlin Wall the previous year, and the end of the Cold War. A time of hope for the future, yet great uncertainty. With fewer things predictable, the young generation at the time didn't know what the future might hold.

Now, the world is going through dramatic change once again. Our values and assumptions are changing, as are the norms and systems that constitute the "rules of the game." For example, we once hoped that developments in communication technology would lead to the advancement of liberal democracy, but we are now witnessing its potential to prop up authoritarianism. Likewise, we once believed that globalization and strengthening economic interdependence would guarantee peace and prosperity in the international community. The current state of our world, however, tells a different story.

The social order is fluid, and real-world issues do not emerge within specific academic disciplines. That is why we should always question conventional approaches and pursue new solutions. If conventional studies focus on understanding things accurately within a limited scope, policy management studies are their antithesis. Policy development and implementation is an art of consolidating all intellectual activities of human society. Our field synthesizes and advances interdisciplinary domains while remaining conversant with each advanced discipline. Devising effective policies to blaze trails requires perspectives that integrate knowledge from multiple disciplines and transcend the distinctions within the existing education system.

One of the appeals of policy management studies is that it equips us with modes of thinking that lead the way far ahead of society in continuous change. We strive to look ahead to changes in society and proactively solve issues as our own—this is the starting point for the Faculty of Policy Management.

Our mission is to pursue the truth and conceive of new ideas to make Japan and the world a better place. More than 10,000 students have graduated from our faculty. While this may be only a drop in the bucket in the context of the whole world, many of our graduates are working hard to make Japan and the world a better place. Students who are ready to engage in these efforts are what we seek in the Faculty of Policy Management.

Professor Tomoki Kamo,
Dean of the Faculty of Policy Management

What we look for in students at the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies

Opening the door to a new era

The 20th century—an entire century before many of you were born—saw remarkable developments in science and technology, but it was also an era of wars and environmental problems. The 21st century was expected to be marked by environmental awareness. However, even 25 years in, global environmental issues such as climate change and biodiversity loss remain largely unresolved. The world needs fundamental change in order to combat these challenges.

Climate change leads to a high incidence of natural disasters and various risks. Many nations are stepping up their efforts toward carbon neutrality, striving to achieve net-zero carbon dioxide emissions by 2050. Global goals were adopted in December 2022, with urgent actions set to halt and reverse biodiversity loss, putting us on a path to restore what was lost. Turning to domestic issues, we see the risk of large-scale natural disasters, such as a Nankai megathrust earthquake, and Japan's population rapidly declining and steadily aging. The list goes on, making it feel as though a dark future is all that awaits us.

It was once believed that advancements in science and technology promised a bright future for us all, though only a few still believe in this. Even so, science and technology continue to create new possibilities. For example, taking classes and working online has become the norm since the pandemic. In a way, for those who are familiar with Japanese popular culture, this is like the realization of Doraemon's magical door, which lets you instantly move across space.

Your era will be completely different from the one your parents lived through. Japan's population over the age of 100 has reached an all-time high, and with advancements in medicine, an era where living to 120 is within reach. Changes like this will keep accelerating, as demonstrated by the explosive rise of generative AI, for example. We can't simply approach the future as an extension of the past. We need to embrace challenges rooted in our own visions and ideas.

At the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies, we are looking for students who drive change and will shape a new era. We hope you will have the courage to join us on the journey to creating a bright future by making the most of the resources here—faculty members, peers, and the research and educational environment. Now, let us open the door to a new era together.

Professor Tomohiro Ichinose,
Dean of the Faculty of Environment and Information Studies

Recommendation letters sent by post will NOT be accepted as an application document. For the letter to be valid, it must bear the recommender's signature or official seal.

- 12) If you wish to submit the content of a website as an optional material, simply providing the URL is not sufficient for it to be considered for your application (i.e., a URL accompanied by a note such as “please refer to the following URL” will not be accepted as an optional material. Online Application Form.” This entry is required for the results to be considered as part of your application.
- 2) If results of test scores are submitted separately from other application documents, they must arrive at Keio University during the dates indicated below. Test scores that arrive before or after these dates will be invalid. Since score delivery may take time, please check the schedule with the test agency in advance and allow sufficient time for arrangements.

H. Sending Application Documents by Post

1. Place your documents in a 240 mm x 332 mm envelope (kakugata ni go [角形 2 号]) or larger. Affix the address label (see p. 28) and send it by post, strictly adhering to the postal submission deadline. Submission of the online application alone does not complete the application process.
2. If you are mailing documents from within Japan, go to a post office counter and send them via simple registered express mail (簡易書留速達). The envelope must be postmarked on or before the deadline for submitting documents by post. Envelopes postmarked before the submission period will also be accepted.
3. Documents sent from outside of Japan must arrive by the postal submission deadline. Please confirm the estimated delivery time in advance and ensure your documents are sent well in advance of the deadline. Use a means of delivery that provides a tracking service (e.g., EMS, DHL, FedEx). Documents that arrive before the submission period will also be accepted.
4. Documents that arrive after the deadline will not be accepted, even if the online application is completed within the designated period.
5. Incomplete or late applications will not be accepted under any circumstances. Furthermore, no supplemental application materials will be accepted after the submission period. Please make sure all documents are complete and included before submitting your application. If you must submit any part of your application separately, such as certificates issued outside Japan or standardized test results, be sure to enter the expected arrival date on your online application form. Even in this case, all documents must arrive within the postal submission period.

*Be sure to also refer to “XI. Frequently Asked Questions and Common Mistakes” on p. 39-43.

I. Important Notes on Applications

Please make sure all documents are complete and included before submitting your application. If you must submit any part of your application separately, such as certificates issued outside Japan or standardized test results, be sure to enter the expected arrival date on your online application form. Even in this case, all documents must arrive within the postal submission period.

1. Applicants who have been contracted an infectious disease designated under the School Health and Safety Act and have not fully recovered by the day of the interview must refrain from attending the interview, to prevent potential spread. Exceptions may be made if a physician or school doctor determines that the applicant's condition has improved and that their attendance does not pose a risk of infection to others. In principle, interviews will not be rescheduled, nor will the application fee be refunded if applicants are unable to attend the interview for the reasons mentioned above.
2. In unforeseen circumstances, the faculties may change the schedule for screenings and/or the announcement of results. In principle, Keio University does not bear responsibility for any inconvenience, cost, or any kind of loss caused to applicants as a result of this rescheduling.
3. The order and details on how the interviews will be implemented will not be announced in advance. Furthermore, applicants cannot specify the date and time of the interview. Interview venue, date, and time will be notified at the time of the announcement of first-round results. Depending on the order, there may be a wait time. The end time of the final interview on each screening day will be announced at the time of the first-round screening results.

If you are unable to submit this report for having studied under an education system of countries other than Japan, please submit both an official academic transcript and a certificate of graduation. If you are an applicant whose status is “expected graduation from high school,” you are required to graduate from high school by September 21, 2026 (for September enrollment) or March 31, 2027 (for April enrollment). If you fail to do so, your enrollment will be voided.

Notes about the language you use for enrollment registration

For April enrollees, Japanese is the language for enrollment registration; English is not available as a language option.

September enrollees can choose either Japanese or English as the language they use for enrollment registration. The language you select cannot be changed after your online application has been completed.

The language of instruction for class-designated courses will be determined according to the language you select for enrollment registration. Sliding scale system

In accordance with the University Undergraduate Rules and Regulations, we apply a sliding scale to calculate tuition, registration and facilities fees. This means that students may be required to pay a different amount each year of enrollment. The rate at which this increases corresponds to the public service employee pay increase rate from the as reported by the National Personnel Authority.

VII. Pre-enrollment Assignment for Successful Applicants

Successful applicants will work on an assignment designed to help them prepare for their studies and research at the university, making the most of their time before enrollment. Further details will be provided after the announcement of admission results.

XI. Frequently Asked Questions and Common Mistakes

A. FAQs

1. General

- Q1-1. Can I apply to both faculties at SFC at the same time?
A1-1. No. You may not apply to both faculties during the same application period.
- Q1-2. Can I apply to faculties at other Keio campuses or other universities at the same time?
A1-2. Applying to other faculties or other universities is not prohibited. However, to be eligible for our AO screenings, one of the two faculties at SFC must be your first choice.
- Q1-3. Can I reapply?
A1-3. Yes. You will need to prepare the items necessary for application each time you apply. In addition, you will need to provide an explanation of changes from the previous application. Please note that each application will begin with the first-round screening. You may also apply through general entrance examination.
- Q1-4. How are Summer/Fall AO screenings different from Spring AO screenings?
A1-4. There are no differences in the screening method. However, the enrollment period differs depending on the application period. Please apply for the period when all required documents and materials are ready for submission.
- Q1-5. How do Winter AO (GIGA) screenings differ from Summer/Fall AO and Spring AO screenings?
A1-5. Eligibility requirements and screening methods differ. GIGA applicants will be screened solely based on submitted documents, and no interviews will be conducted, so they do not need to come to Japan for the screenings. While you can select either Japanese or English for the language you use to apply for Summer/Fall AO and Spring AO screenings, you must use English for Winter AO screenings. For further details, please refer to the Winter AO application guidebook, which will become available around late September 2026.
- Q1-6. Will the enrollment period or language I select affect the screening results?
A1-6. No. Your choice of enrollment period and language will have no impact on the screening process. Please make your selections based on your preferences. Your selections cannot be altered after you have submitted the application. Enrollment in September (Fall Semester) is strongly recommended if your Japanese proficiency is not yet at a level to take classes conducted in Japanese.
- Q1-7. Can I change my enrollment period after submitting my application?
A1-7. No. After submitting your application, you may not change the enrollment period you selected. Make sure you carefully consider which enrollment period is the best for you before submitting your application.
- Q1-8. Are there hotels and accommodations available near the Shonan Fujisawa Campus?
A1-8. Yes. There are hotels at the nearest stations, Shonandai Station and Tsujido Station. If you require accommodations for the second-round screening interview, you are responsible for arranging your own accommodations.

2. Application eligibility

- Q2-1. Are any particular achievements in extracurricular activities (e.g., awards, activities and achievements abroad) required to be eligible?
- A2-1. No. We welcome applications from individuals who, even without extracurricular achievements, show strong academic ability and a clear sense of purpose in studying at our faculties.
- Q2-2. What are some examples of academic and extracurricular achievements that I should highlight in my application?
- A2-2. The following are examples that help us evaluate your strengths and academic aptitude:
- a. Achievements in activities such as research, creative presentations, contests, or competitions, in fields such as academics, culture, arts, or sports
 - b. Achievements that demonstrate proficiency in foreign languages or computer technology, or high scores in related tests and/or high-level qualifications
 - c. Community volunteer work or other social work
 - d. Achievements that demonstrate superior academic abilities and a creative, enthusiastic attitude toward learning
 - e. Achievements that show outstanding character, academic aptitude, and leadership, particularly those that show you have taken on leadership roles in your local community, high school, or similar contexts
 - f. Self-initiated independent projects and research on topics of personal interest with notable results
- Q2-3. Are there any specific criteria or standards for academic performance such as grades or test scores?
- A2-3. No. We do not have specific grade point average or test score requirements for eligibility.
- Q2-4. Can I apply even though I am currently enrolled at another university? Can I apply if a long time has passed since my high school graduation? Is there an upper age limit for applying?
- A2-4. There is no upper age limit for applying. As long as you meet the eligibility requirements, you are welcome to apply. Please note that if you are currently enrolled in, or have previously attended, another university, an official academic transcript from that institution is required.

3. Online application and required documents

- Q3-1. What is the difference between the "language used in application documents" and the "language used for enrollment registration"?
- A3-1. You will be asked to choose the "language used in application documents" in advance to ensure that the same language will be used in your application and your Personal Statement. Please use the selected language to the extent possible when you input your information and prepare your documents. You cannot change the language once you made your selection, so please choose carefully.

You will also choose the language that you use for enrollment registration—the procedures you will complete if admitted to the faculty you applied to. All procedures will be conducted in this language. Information about the procedures will be provided in either Japanese or English, NOT both. The procedure differs depending on the admission route. In addition, the language of instruction for class-designated courses will be determined according to the language you choose for enrollment registration. If you choose Japanese, you will be assigned to Japanese classes, and English classes if you choose English. Mandatory classes will be conducted in the language you have chosen for enrollment registration. Please take this into consideration when making your selection. Also note that applicants wishing to enroll in April cannot select English as the language for enrollment registration.

- Q3-2. I have selected Japanese (or English) as the language for application documents. Do I need to prepare the evaluation of applicants in the same language as well? Also, do I need to prepare certificates related to grades and graduation in that language?
- A3-2. No. Both Japanese and English are accepted for the evaluation of applicants. Likewise, we accept certificates both in Japanese and English.
- Q3-3. I have materials that highlight the results of my activities. Can I send them by post?
- A3-3. No. Anything not listed in this guidebook as items to be submitted by post will not be accepted. However, you can submit them online via the Application System.

The following will NOT be considered application documents if sent by post:

- Recommendations
- Awards and qualification certificates for competitions other than those on the approved list for first-round screening exemption
- Scores and test results from applicants other than those who studied under an education system in countries other than Japan
- Scores submitted in a way not following the instructions in this guidebook

- Q3-4. I have more than ten optional materials that I want to submit. What should I do?
- A3-4. Unfortunately, we will not accept more than ten documents. We suggest that you devise a way to keep the number to ten or less when organizing your materials.
- Q3-5. I created two presentation slides for my Personal Statement, but only one is indicated as uploaded.
- A3-5. Only one PDF file can be submitted. If you have created two presentation slides, combine them into a single PDF file and upload it.
- Q3-6. My evaluator has not finished the evaluation. What should I do?
- A3-6. Contact the evaluator directly to inquire about the status of the evaluation. Meanwhile, check if the evaluator's email address has been entered correctly. Once the evaluator's email address is registered, they should receive an email with the following subject line:

件名: 【オンライン出願システム】評価者依頼のご連絡

Subject: [Online Application System] Request for applicant evaluation

Please ensure the evaluators have their email settings set to receive this email, and check if it has been sent to the junk or trash folder.

You cannot submit your application documents until the two evaluators complete their evaluation by pressing Completed), application documents cannot be submitted. Although this is the action that must be carried out by the evaluators, it is the applicant's responsibility to allow the evaluators sufficient time to complete their evaluation.

Evaluation status

Uncompleted	Evaluation has not yet been entered
In Progress	Evaluation is being entered but not submitted yet
Completed	Evaluation has been completed and submitted.

- Q3-7. By clicking the designated URL for the evaluation, you will be directed to the evaluation input screen, NOT the login ID and password registration page.
- A3-7. If the evaluator has previously been asked to submit an evaluation and created a login ID and password, they will be directed to the login screen by clicking the URL. Please have them log in with their existing ID and password to submit the current evaluation.

- Q3-8. May I drop my postal submission documents in a mailbox? How can I know if my documents arrive at the Admissions Office on time?
- A3-8. Simply dropping your documents in a mailbox around town may result in missing the deadline. We strongly advise that you choose a delivery method that provides tracking. If mailing from within Japan, visit the post office counter and send your documents via simple registered express mail (簡易書留速達). Likewise, we recommend using a method that provides tracking (e.g., EMS, DHL, FedEx) if mailing from outside of Japan.

We ask you use the tracking code to confirm that your documents arrive at our office on time, as we cannot answer if we have received them. Please also check your application status during the designated period by logging in to the Application System.

4. Application System

- Q4-1. The Application System is not working properly. What should I do?
- A4-1. Please check the system requirements. The system may not run smoothly if you are using an operating system, web browser, or version other than those recommended.
- Q4-2. When I click Completed, Submit, or other buttons, the screen doesn't change even after a long wait.
- A4-2. Uploading large files, such as when submitting all your documents, can take some time. If the upload still hasn't completed after 15 minutes, please close your browser and log in again. If that does not resolve the issue, try uploading and submitting documents using a faster internet connection. If the problem continues, contact the Admissions Office for assistance.

B. Common Mistakes

Any of the following mistakes will result in your entire application being invalidated. Be sure to carefully check your documents while preparing them and review them once again before mailing.

- ☒ Certificates are not officially sealed/Date of issuance is old.
→ Documents submitted by post must be officially sealed. Please make sure that all certificates include a valid issuance date.
- ☒ Only one page of the Handwritten Application Form was submitted by post.
